Notes from the Director

This summer has witnessed particularly dramatic and often painful developments on the national and international stage. Events in the Middle East, Europe and within the U.S. have challenged ideas of peace, security and justice; debates within the U.S. and Europe have challenged seemingly foundational ideas and institutions, reinterpreting the past and reshaping the future; and the unprecedented discourse surrounding the U.S. presidential race has challenged our concepts of immigration, identity and American democracy itself.

Our Jewish Studies faculty are centrally positioned to grapple with the pressing issues of the day, and through their cutting-edge research and engaged teaching, to work with students through these crucial challenges. Urgent questions about nationalism, immigration, identity and ethnic conflict are illuminated in courses on anti-Semitism, the Holocaust, and the history of Jewish immigration and identity in the U.S., taught by new faculty like Amy Simon and veteran scholars like Kirsten Fermaglich. The histories and tensions that sparked renewed violence around the Temple Mount will be explored in courses like visiting Israeli Professor Yehotal Shapira’s on religion, history and architecture in Jerusalem and Yuval Benziman’s and Marc Bernstein’s on Israeli history and society. Visiting professor Alon Tal grapples with global environmental concerns in his course on climate change and public policy. Pressing questions about strategy and ethics of fighting non-state actors using terrorist tactics are discussed in Yaël Aronoff’s course on asymmetric warfare. Across the breadth and depth of courses taught by our Jewish Studies faculty, issues of diversity, identity, tradition and change are central, and they illuminate these pressing contemporary questions through close examination of the specific experience of Jewish communities both past and present. In short, Jewish Studies has never been more relevant than it is today.

I want to highlight several developments that speak to the relevance of our Jewish Studies program to these current challenges. The first is our program’s growing strength in Holocaust studies. Our established leadership in Holocaust Studies has been enhanced by the addition of Amy Simon as the inaugural Appointee to the William and Audrey Farber Chair in Holocaust Studies and European History – the only endowed Chair in Holocaust Studies in the state of Michigan. In addition, a generous donation by Ed Brill and his sister Leslie Van Brandt (in memory of their brother Michael Brill) to the MSU library has made possible MSU faculty and student access to the USC Shoah Foundation Visual History Archive, an exclusive database of 50,000 video testimonies from Holocaust survivors, with support for teaching faculty and graduate students how to best use this resource. Faculty and graduate students from across the university will receive extensive training in September, led by Ken Waltzer with Deborah Margolis, on how to use these in their research and teaching. We now have more than a half a dozen faculty teaching and researching various aspects of Holocaust Studies across the university, and this will continue to grow and contribute to genocide studies more broadly. We are also well positioned to contribute to Michigan’s new legislation mandating the teaching of the Holocaust in all schools across the state.

We are also expanding our strengths in Israel Studies. The study of Israel focuses on many pressing issues crucial to global events more broadly, including the challenges of democracy and equality in a culturally, religiously and ethnically divided society; the role of religion in democracy; the challenge of enhancing regional and global connections in the face of threats posed by state and non-state actors and the challenges of peacemaking between long-standing adversaries. This semester our established strengths in Israel Studies has been enhanced by an unprecedented number of visiting Israeli academics and artists. I have already mentioned the courses that will be taught by visiting Israeli scholars like Shapira, Ben-ziman and Alon Tal, which link Israel Studies to both James Madison College and the Residential College in the Arts and Humanities. Esteemed Israeli artist Chen Shapiro will be exhibiting his art at the RCAH gallery. In addition, coinciding with MSU’s Year of Water, Alon Tal has helped organize a Jewish Studies-sponsored symposium on lake management, which will bring over a dozen Israeli and Michigan environmentalists, academics and policy makers together to discuss lake management issues in the Great Lakes and the Kinneret/Sea of Galilee, to which the public is invited.

It will be an exciting fall semester to be part of Jewish Studies at Michigan State University!
—Yaël Aronoff, Professor and Director
Amy Simon (Ph.D., Indiana University—Bloomington) is the inaugural appointee to the William and Audrey Farber Chair in Holocaust Studies and European Jewish History, sited in James Madison College and the Department of History. She is a core Jewish Studies faculty member. She has worked as a researcher at the United States Holocaust Museum and has published several articles on Holocaust literature and Holocaust perpetrators. Dr. Simon will be the first professor appointed to an endowed Holocaust Studies chair in Michigan. This fall, she will be teaching MC498 Senior Seminar: The Holocaust in American Memory. This course will examine the ever-changing constructions of Holocaust memory in the United States, from the revelations of the horrors of the concentration and death camps in the spring of 1945, through the challenge of Holocaust remembrance in personal testimony, literature, film, and physical memorials in the present day. In spring 2017 she will be teaching HST411 European Jewish History, which will examine post-World War II issues including the emergence of new centers of Jewish life in Europe and the Former Soviet Union, as well as Holocaust memory and memorialization in major European centers. She will also be teaching MC387: Jews and Anti-Semitism, which will compare the history and sociology of modern Jewish experiences, explore anti-Semitism and intergroup relations and examine the Holocaust and responses to it.

Sustainable Management of Iconic Lakes: Lessons Learned from Lake Michigan and Lake Kinneret (Sea of Galilee)

Tuesday, September 14, 2016 — Club Spartan, Case Hall

8:15: Welcome and Opening Remarks: Professor Alon Tal, Visiting MSU Professor and Mr. Jon Allan, Director, Michigan Office of the Great Lakes, and Yael Aronoff.

Session I: Lake Kinneret Past and Present
Moderator: Prof. Mark Axelrod.
8:30 - 8:45: Film: Sea of Galilee – Travelogue
8:45 - 9:00: The Environmental History of Lake Kinneret - Professor Alon Tal.
9:50-10:15: Monitoring and Research on Lake Kinneret - Dr. Tamar Zohary, Former Director of Lake Kinneret Laboratory.

Session II: Lake Michigan: Past and Present
Moderator: MSU Faculty member TBA.
10:30 - 11:20: Lake Michigan Spiritual Dimensions: - Mr. Frank Ettawageshik, Executive Director, United Tribes of Michigan.

12:15 - 1:45: Lunch, on site, complimentary for participants and attendees

Session III: Contrasting Lake and Watershed Management Strategies
Moderator: Mr. Jon Allan.

Two person (Israeli/Michigan/) panels on specific management challenges:
1:45-2:15: Tourism, Development and Coastal Zone Management. Israeli panelist: Dr. Orit Skultesky, Director of Water Resource Initiatives at the Society for Protection of Nature in Israel; Lake Michigan panelist: Dr. David Lorenz, Vice President Travel Michigan/Michigan Economic Development Cooperation.
2:15-2:45: Ensuring Sustainable Fisheries. Israeli panelist: Director Avital Gasith, Porter School of Environmental Studies Research at Tel Aviv University; Lake Michigan panelist: Dr. David Lorenz, Vice President Travel Michigan/Michigan Economic Development Cooperation.
3:15-3:45: Protecting Water Quality. Israeli Panelist: Dr. Doron Markel, Israel Water Authority; Lake Michigan panelist: TBA speaker from US Environmental Protection Agency.
3:45-4:15: Adapting to Climate Change. Israeli Panelist: Dr. Doron Markel; Lake Michigan panelist TBA.

Session IV: Open Discussion and Concluding Remarks
Moderator: Dr. Alon Tal.
4:15-5:00: Open discussion. Looking to the future, lessons learned and possible collaboration efforts.
Yuval Benzingman (Ph.D., Hebrew University) is a returning Fall 2016 Serling Visiting Israeli Scholar and Israel Institute Scholar and a lecturer on conflict resolution, culture studies and Israel studies. Dr. Benzingman will teach two courses at James Madison College: MC399 Cultural Contexts of Conflicts: the Israeli Case and MC335 Israeli Politics, Cultures and Society. Dr. Benzingman teaches in the conflict resolution programs at Tel Aviv University and in the School of Government and the School of Law in the IDC Herzliya. He also teaches MA seminars about the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and about the transformation of the Israeli culture throughout the years. He taught at MSU during the 2015-16 academic year. Dr. Benzingman researches about Israel’s foreign policy for NGOs (Geneva Initiative, Mitvim, Ir Amim), and works on issues regarding conscription and the relations between Israeli society and its military.

Yehotal Shapira (Ph.D., Technion University) is also a Fall 2016 Visiting Israeli Scholar. Her research interests are architecture and the arts within cultural studies. She is our first Visiting Israeli Scholar in the Residential College in the Arts and Humanities. This Fall, she will be teaching RCAH395 The Mount and the City: Religion, Politics and Architecture in Jerusalem. The course will examine the place of the Temple Mount/al-Haram al-Sharif in the complex, urban and multicultural Jerusalem environment. It will analyze the modern history and surrounding urban development of the Temple Mount and evaluate it as a focal point for conflict and contested perspectives.

Alon Tal (Ph.D., Harvard School of Public Health; J.D., Hebrew University) is also a Fall 2016 Serling Visiting Israeli Scholar, and he will teach MC399 Environmentalism in Israel and MC399 Climate Change and Public Policy in Fall 2016 at James Madison College. From 1990-1997, Dr. Tal was the founding director of the Israeli Union for Environmental Defense, a leading public interest law group. He was chairman of Life and Environment, an umbrella group for eighty environmental organizations in Israel, from 1998-2003. Dr. Tal represents Israel’s Foreign Ministry at the UN’s Convention to Combat Desertification. He is also co-chair of Israel’s Green Party. Dr. Tal is the author of several environmental policy books, including All the Trees of the Forest: Israel’s Woodlands from the Antiquity to the Present (Yale University Press: 2013) and The Land is Full: Addressing Overpopulation in Israel (Yale University Press, 2016).

Steve Rachman (Ph.D., Yale University) is Director of the American Studies Program, Co-Director of the Digital Humanities Literary Cognition Laboratory, and an English Department Associate Professor. This Fall, he will be advising senior honors theses. For many years, he has directed honors theses on such notable authors as Emma Lazarus, Philip Roth, Abraham Cahan, Mike Gold, and Cynthia Ozick. Dr. Rachman has taught ENG344 Jewish-American Literature, in addition to teaching courses on Literature and Medicine, Popular Literature, and Methodologies of Literary History. He has written numerous articles on Edgar Allan Poe, literature and medicine, cities, and popular culture. He is the editor of The Hasheesh Eater by Fitz-Hugh Ludlow (Rutgers University Press). He is a co-author of the award-winning Cholera, Chloroform, and the Science of Medicine: A Life of John Snow (Oxford University Press) and the co-editor of The American Face of Edgar Allan Poe (Johns Hopkins University Press). He is a past president of the Poe Studies Association and currently completing a study of Poe entitled “The Jingle Man: Edgar Allan Poe and the Problems of Culture.”

Save the date! The 12th annual MSU Israeli Film Festival: April 2-3, 2017
College of Arts & Letters
C-730 Wells Hall
619 Red Cedar Road
East Lansing, MI 48824
Phone: 517-432-3493
Fax: 517-355-4507
Email: jewishst@msu.edu
Website: jsp.msu.edu
MSU is an affirmative-action, equal-opportunity institution.

Yael Aronoff presented “The Arab-Israeli Peace Process: Public and Elite Perspectives,” at a conference on US-Israeli Relations at Princeton University’s Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs and its Center for International Security Studies on May 5–6, 2016. At the Association for Israel Studies Annual Meeting, June 20-22, 2016, Jerusalem, Dr. Aronoff participated in several panel presentations and round-tables, including on U.S.-Israeli relations, on the contemporary challenges of teaching about Israel, and on new archival research on Golda Meir. She participated in the Israel Institute Leadership Summit, presenting in the panel, “20/20 Hindsight – Peace Process Memories” at Ma’ale HaChamisha, Israel, June 26-29, 2016. Dr. Aronoff will be participating in AJS Directors’ roundtable on “The Role of Israel Studies in Jewish Studies Programs” for the Association of Jewish Studies Conference, December 18-20, 2016 in San Diego. Dr. Aronoff is working on her book project The Dilemmas of Asymmetric Conflicts: Navigating Deterrence and Democratic Constraints.

Marc Bernstein chaired a session at the Society for Judeo-Arabic Studies at Vanderbilt University in August, 2016. In June, he participated in the “Shared Society” conference on “Implications of the Israeli-Palestinian Conflict on Common Citizenship for Jews and Arabs in Israel” at Givat Haviva. While on a research leave for winter 201, he worked as Special Adviser to the Executive Director, developing programs for students from abroad. Dr. Bernstein worked as an advisor to Member of Knesset Issawi Frej. He is currently working on a new project to publish a collection of photographs and primary source materials from Kletsk, a shtetl in present-day Belarus. During his research leave, Dr. Bernstein worked with researchers at the Hebrew University, the Mordechai Anielewicz Memorial Holocaust Studies and Research Center at Givat Haviva, Yad Vashem in Jerusalem, and the US Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, DC.

Kirsten Fermaglich completed a draft of her book manuscript, A Rosenberg By Any Other Name: Jews, Name Changing, and Race in New York City, under contract with NYU Press. Dr. Fermaglich chaired a panel on “Jewish Families and Migration,” at the Biennial Scholars Conference on American Jewish History in June. She was also appointed co-editor of the flagship journal in her field, American Jewish History along with Adam Mendelsohn and Daniel Soyer.

Michael Koppisch edited with Audrey Bruntza a special issue of the Journal of Women in French Studies entitled “Seeing Charlotte Delbo/Seeing the Shoah.” It is the first edition of essays in English on the work of Delbo (1913-1985), who was active in the French Resistance, survived Auschwitz, and, after writing about her experience, became an important literary figure. Dr. Koppisch’s essay contribution is entitled “Charlotte Delbo: Writing (Against) Death.”

Deborah Margolis presented “The Potential of the Past: Walking Through the Creation of an Open Access Collection of Faculty-Produced Holocaust Site Photographs” (with Aaron Collie, Robin Dean, & Devin Higgins) at HASTAC (Humanities, Arts, Science, and Technology Alliance and Collaboratory), Arizona State University in Temple, May 2016.

