"This was a study abroad unlike any other, and one that really pushes you to dig deeper and meticulously examine everything around you. All our experiences showed us how diverse Israel is, and how many different stories and perspectives exist in this small state." (2015 Participant)

The program comprises two courses that fulfill MSU ISS and IAH requirements; and either course may be taken as JS 390 or JS 400:

Immigration and Cultural Diversity in Israel (ISS 330B / MC 390 / JS 400: 4 credits)

An inquiry-based class in which students investigate issues related to diversity, immigration and identity in Israel. Students engage with Israelis on personal, institutional, and professional levels, and use their experience to pursue an independent research project. (Instructor: Yore Kedem, Ph.D. Assistant Professor of Hebrew, MSU)

The Emergence of the Modern State of Israel (MC 290 / IAH 211D / JS 390: 4 credits)

A survey of ideological, political, and social developments from the rise of the Zionist movement to the present. (Instructor: David Mendelsson, Ph.D)

Students from other institutions may also apply on a space-available basis.

$3000 Levy Scholarships from the Michael and Elaine Serling Institute for Jewish Studies and Modern Israel to go toward the program fee are readily available by application to all MSU students who will have completed one year of study at MSU by summer 2019 and have at least a 3.0 GPA. These awards help make this by far the most affordable of all MSU study abroad programs. For more information and an application form, please see: <http://jsp.msu.edu/israel/levy-scholarship>.

This program is sponsored and made possible by the Michael and Elaine Serling Institute for Jewish Studies and Modern Israel and its supporters.
